

Artnet AG

Quarterly Interim Statement
for the First Quarter 2022

Artnet

The Art World Online

Since 1989, Artnet has revolutionized the way collectors, professionals, and art enthusiasts discover and collect fine art today. Artnet's founder, Hans Neuendorf, provided a clear vision from the outset: to create the leading online resource for the international art world – a trusted and transparent global marketplace to buy, sell, and research fine art.

As the art market continues its digital transformation, our purpose remains more relevant now than ever. 2021 saw the continued drive towards a truly digitally enabled art market, with the transition of 2020 that was catalyzed by the global pandemic taking hold and solidifying. The art market had been one of the last bastions resisting the adoption of online commerce. Today, we have witnessed a radical shift in mentality in the industry, and Artnet's long held vision of a transparent, digital art market is starting to become a reality.

With that in mind, the future is looking bright. Artnet continues to strive towards its vision, and is valued by the market as the industry's key independent information provider and marketplace. With a strong start to the first Quarter, Artnet is positioned to lead and guide the market in its shift towards a digital art market, as it has done since its inception.

‘Artnet was able to record growth in line with its Forecasts in Q1 2022 driven by continued strong growth in its Media segment despite an increasingly uncertain economic environment. Key product and technology developments are progressing as planned as the Company pursues its strategy of unlocking value through the realization of synergies between its core segments.’

Economic Development of the Artnet Group

The global economy entered 2022 in a weaker position than previously expected. Global growth is projected to slow from an estimated 6.1 percent in 2021 to 3.6 percent in 2022 and 2023. This is 0.8 and 0.2 percentage points lower for 2022 and 2023 than projected in January (Source: International Monetary Fund). Socio-political instability caused by the conflict between Russia and the Ukraine have contributed to market fluctuations, rising oil prices, and supply chain disruptions. 2022 inflation projections of 5.7 percent in advanced economies and 8.7 percent in emerging market and developing economies are higher than January projections (Source: International Monetary Fund). The declining global growth, inflationary pressure, and financial markets instability are expected to have a moderate impact on performance

The art market, like many other industries, has gone through a challenging and transformative period since early 2020, continuing into the 2022 financial year. Along with the difficulties it presented, the global pandemic also created an opportunity for restructuring and innovation in the sector, with a strong shift towards online transactions - of which Artnet, as the pioneer of online commerce in the art market, is poised to benefit from in 2022 and beyond.

The art market saw a recovery in 2021, with transaction volumes returning to pre-pandemic levels. Signaling a shift in purchasing patterns, collectors are now increasingly comfortable in buying higher value artworks online. In 2019, the average price of an artwork sold online was 11,228 USD. In 2020, that figure jumped to 46,595 USD, and remained on an upward trajectory, rising 15 percent in 2021, to 53,685 USD. (Source: Artnet Analytics). This can also be seen in Artnet's increasing average transaction value (ATV) and success in higher price categories in 2021 and through the first quarter of 2022.

Also launched in 2021, 'Buy Now' has continued to expand, with a focus on tightly curated releases of unique works and editions for immediate purchase.

Top lots during the first quarter of 2022 include Roy Lichtenstein's Nude with Yellow Pillow (from the Nude series), which realized 425,000 USD including premium, significantly above its high estimate of 300,000 USD; Light artist Dan Flavin's Untitled (to Brad Gillaugh), which hammered down at 275,000 USD including premium; as well as Ed Ruscha's iconic Mocha Standard, which realized 150,000 USD including premium.

Data

Artnet is the industry's critical Data provider. With over 15 million auction results, The Price Database's highly reliable and transparent information is an essential research tool for all art market participants.

During the first quarter, revenue from the Data segment declined 2% YoY to 1,900k USD (2021: 1,946k USD). Data revenue is expected to increase in Q3 with the release of the Price Database redesign planned for late Q2.

Risks & Opportunities

Artnet operates in a challenging niche market. To monitor and adapt to a continually changing landscape, Artnet continuously observes internal and external risks and opportunities. There has not been a material change in the risk profile of the Company as compared to the 2021 reporting year. Management is monitoring global economic developments and inflationary pressures closely but sees no need for immediate action.

A detailed overview of all opportunities and risks can be found in the 2020 Annual Report.

Financial Position

Driven by strong growth in the Media segment, Artnet's revenue increased by 19% to 6,212k USD in the first Quarter (2021: 5,233k USD).

Gross Profit in the first three months increased by 16% or 485k USD to 3.43 million USD as a result of strong revenue growth. The result was partially offset by increased Network Maintenance and Personnel costs.

Operating Expenses increased by 13% or 500k USD to 4.21 million USD driven by investments in Product Development, Sales and Marketing, as well as an increase in General Administrative Expenses.

As a result, Operating Income for the first quarter of 2022 was -786k USD, and Operating Cash Flow ended at 497k USD.

Outlook

Jacob Pabst, Vorstand, Artnet AG

In 2022 the global outlook appears mired by economic and geopolitical issues. The US economy recorded a constriction in the first quarter, and the turbulence seen in financial markets point to uncertainty and bearish sentiment. Following rising inflationary pressures across developed economies, monetary policy responses are tightening. There is some early concern that increasing interest rates will lower demand in the fine art and luxury collectibles market, although no clear indication of that has been recorded as of yet.

Despite this, management is forecasting continued growth for the remainder of the financial year. The share price has also recovered slightly at the end of the first Quarter. Artnet's diversified business model has proven robust through downturns, and the Company's Media and Transactional businesses in particular have a strong growth runway. Management is looking forward to the completion of important technology projects including the Price Database rebuild, as well as hiring in key positions that will drive growth through Q2 and beyond.

Along with the complete rebuild of the Price Database, there are important additional improvements that will already have an impact on revenues in 2022. A unified navigation, a full revamp of Artnet News, and important key page redesigns will significantly increase not only the usability of the Artnet platform, but also begin to help realize the synergies between the Media, Marketplace, and Data segments. The outlook for the individual segments has not changed since the publication of the Annual Report 2021 on May 4, 2022. Management confirms the forecasts.

Artnet has the foundational brand strength and broad product suite to lead the online art market for years to come and is making the necessary investments to obtain long term market share and profitability.
