Sporting situation

The aim is to further develop the professional squad, thus creating and developing financial value. The primary objective is to achieve sporting successes without incurring new debt.

Transfer policy/football philosophy

• Professional scouting geared towards value appreciation is intended to create substantial earnings potential through transfers and long-term sporting competitiveness for the future. This transfer policy is ideally supplemented by coach Thomas Tuchel's football philosophy whereby young players, such as Julian Weigl (20) and Matthias Ginter (21) are added to the roster of the first-team professional squad.

High-quality players bring about excellent performance

 Players such as Ilkay Gündogan (24), Pierre-Emerick Aubameyang (26), Marco Reus (26), Henrikh Mkhitaryan (26), Shinji Kagawa (26) and Mats Hummels (26) offer the necessary quality of performance.

Developing up-and-coming talent

 Intensive talent development makes it possible to focus on the club's own up-and-coming players who can be added to the professional squad roster. Examples include in particular Mats Hummels, Ilkay Gündogan, Erik Durm and Marcel Schmelzer, who are also integral members of Germany's national team. New talents such as Felix Passlack (17) and Christian Pulisic (17) have high hopes of joining the professional squad.

State-of-the-art training centre/BVB Academy

• Borussia Dortmund's training centre combines optimal infrastructure with the latest training techniques and analyses, such as computer-assisted video systems, both for the professional squad and for the amateur and youth teams. The BVB Academy is also intended to optimise the transition from youth to senior player for players aged 19 to 23 through its all-day training programmes.
